Guildford Cathedral – also referred to as, The People’s Cathedral – welcomes people of all ages to a place of worship, inspiration and engagement. With a truly remarkable story, The People’s Cathedral was completed through the generosity of thousands of ‘brick-givers’. Being the only English cathedral dedicated to the Holy Spirit, emblems of doves and flames are visible throughout the building; on the handmade kneelers, the pillars, on the wonderful round windows and the etched glass.

The Cathedral is not only a place for daily worship, but also an attraction with unique architecture, being a precious part of our national heritage. The Grade II building was conceived and built in the twentieth century with simple aesthetic design and decoration. The fusion of space, light and principles from Gothic tradition paired with the twentieth century construction techniques reflects the idea of Sir Edward Maufe, architect of the building, to produce a design of the time yet in the line of the great English Cathedral, to build anew on tradition. Set in four acres of grounds in the heart of Guildford, Dapdune Wharf is the historic home of the Wey barges that worked the waterways from Guildford to the Port of London from 1653 onwards. Who knew that Guildford’s commercial waterway pre-dated the northern canals by 100 years?

Here in the heart of Surrey, you can find out about how the Wey Navigation made Guildford the county town of Surrey, as well as relaxing on a boat trip, climbing aboard a restored barge, or learning how to tie a sailor’s knot. The visitor centre at Dapdune Wharf brings to life the stories of this historical waterway. You and your family can have fun at one of our many events, let the children explore or raid our dressing up box.

The River Wey Navigations meander through 20 miles of Surrey countryside, from Godalming to Weybridge, with towpath all the way, so you can walk it in chunks, looking out for resident wildlife. Walk past Sutton Place near Jacob’s Well, where the architect of the Navigation, Sir Richard Weston, lived in 1653. Discover the gory details of his Tudor ancestors who dared to engage with Henry VIII.

From the towpath you can see the ghostly shape of the ruined Newark Abbey, abandoned during the dissolution of the monasteries. Try and guess the location of Newark Mill, a beautiful wooden five-storied mill, which burnt to the ground in an hour in December 1966. At Thames Lock in Weybridge, you can see the pound lock, which replaced an earlier flash lock, enabling boats to move from the navigation into the Thames. Open April to October: Thursdays – Monday.

A Grade 1 listed garden, Painshill was created between 1738 and 1773 by the Honourable Charles Hamilton after he was inspired by Renaissance landscape painting. From the sparkling Crystal Grotto* to the amazing Gothic Tower*, each of the beautifully unique buildings is dramatically placed to create a living work of art. Other key features include the Waterwheel, a quaint Hermitage hidden in the woods and the Painshill Vineyard.

For families there is a natural play area and wildlife spotting trails as well as wildflower meadows to run around in and get back to nature. Dogs are very welcome at Painshill, so all the family can enjoy!

You can spend a whole day at Painshill or there are shorter accessible routes around the Serpentine Lake. Bring a picnic or visit Hamilton’s Tea Room for some delicious treats and refreshments, and don’t forget to visit the Painshill Shop to view an extensive range of gifts, souvenirs, decorations and even Painshill’s very own Sparkling Wine.

Polesden Lacey, the former home of socialite Margaret Greville and just 11 miles from Guildford, is the perfect place to explore.

Spend some time in the house discovering the collection of fine art and objet d’art; linger in the glittering gold Saloon which was designed to impress Maharajas and discover Dutch, Italian and British paintings along the corridors.

The garden’s setting at Polesden Lacey is spectacular; perched on a chalk ridge and taking in views southwards towards the wooded slopes of Ranmore Common and the valley below.

The gardens offer something in every season, bursting to life in spring, with snowdrops, daffodils and bluebells the first to bloom. Throughout the summer, the walled Rose Garden and Double Herbaceous Borders are full of colour and fragrance.

The less formal pleasure grounds are perfect for a gentle stroll and boast panoramic viewpoints across the estate.

Children will love the tree swings and natural play area – or enjoy rolling down the South Lawn. Why not find a shady spot for a picnic and a delicious ice cream? Or visit the bug hotel, beehives and chickens in Home Farm Orchard.

The Polesden Lacey estate sits in the centre of stunning countryside. In almost every direction there are breath-taking views, including the London skyline to the north and the rolling hills of the North Downs to the south. It is as rich in historical features as it is in wildlife and biodiversity.

Our café and coffee shop serve delicious hot and cold food, cream teas and sandwiches.

This nature park at Shalford was created by the Wey & Arun Canal Trust who are restoring the canal as a public amenity and ‘green corridor’ through Surrey and West Sussex, as part of a route from the River Thames to sea. Volunteers have enhanced the park’s environment to attract wildlife ranging from buzzards to butterflies. Scrub has been cleared and new trees planted. The park straddles the Cranleigh Waters stream and is alongside the long-distance Wey-South Path, next to the route of the disused Guildford to Horsham railway line.

The Canal Trust has built a wheelchair-accessible riverside path and a viewing platform (with cycle racks and picnic tables) which provide views of meadowland and magnificent veteran oak trees. Nearby on the Wey-South Path, walkers and cyclists can explore structures including a unique bridge and a historic aqueduct. Further on, the first section of canal in Surrey to be restored can be found, alongside Dunsfold Park. Here, the new Compasses Bridge was opened in October 2016 by Dame Penelope Keith on the 200th anniversary of the canal’s official opening.
Guildford is lucky enough to have the North Downs Way, a designated National Trail passing through the protected landscapes of the Surrey Hills, just a stone's throw from the town centre.

With short circular routes for an afternoon stroll or challenging hikes for those more seasoned walkers, it makes for the perfect day out.

Start your ramble off in Farnham, stopping off at Hogs Back Brewery for a tasty tipple with native grown hops or if you wish for a more artistic endeavour Watts Gallery is also on the route.

As you pass through Guildford, a series of three highlights await; at Chantry Woods catch the south facing views and see the bluebells in full bloom if the time is right. Next, St Martha's Church, the iconic and historic building on the hill with far-reaching views to the South Downs. Topping off the trio is Newlands Corner, with the chance for refreshment as you breathe in the panorama. Following this is a stretch of woodland, dip down into Albury to visit the local organic vineyard or the picturesque village of Shere before you climb back up for a glorious stretch of ridge-walking through to Dorking. It’s not called an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty without just cause!

Keep your eyes peeled for:

- Pill Boxes – Military pieces of history dotted along the length of the route.
- The rich wealth of flora and fauna – rare plants and butterflies as well as British livestock from friendly Belter Galloway cattle to the hardy Herdwick Sheep.
- The River Tillingbourne – with a history of water-milling, this beautiful river winds its way across your path at various points leading into the River Wey.
- The Greensand Way and Pilgrims Way also interlock with your path.
- The Downs Link is a great way for locals to connect between the North and South downs.
